A BISHOP'S VIEW.

Bishop J. L. Spaulding, writing in the Forum, does not believe we are in danger of revolution. We have not heard any intimation that we are, nor has any writer we have read forecast such danger. All that has been contended is that certain loud-mouthed, vicious, and altogether despicable fellows, have talked revolution, lied about the Government, denounced social organization and rated the republic as a thing of infamy. There is danger that such utterances will contaminate the young, inflame the vicious and mislead the ignorant, so that, in the course of some years, we may be something more than annoyed at the strength, violence and wicked mischievousness of a class of people educated to the belief that universal overthrow of all things orderly is right procedure. Therefore it is held that ordinary prudence dictates the suppression of the vermin now seeking to gnaw into the vitals of the American system. The Bishop calls attention to the fact that battles, conflicts and dangers of all kinds, all life, animal or intellectual, is developed and attains strength only through struggle. Bloody warfare no longer has a charm for the civilized; the individual is more and more important as civilization advances, and each is enabled more and more readily to choose his own mode of life and break any bonds that hinder the use of his faculties. So it is that civilization advances the reign of the people and depreciates that of the strongest man. These social questions are brought uppermost, since all and merely physical questions have been fought out and decided by way of the sword. Out of the debate of social questions has arisen the philosophy of despair among Christian nations, under the influence of which are developed the social and governmental structures under the influence of which, a variety of activities, intemperance, indolence, socialism, etc. But the essayist shows that countless millions of Mohammedans and Buddhists, strictly sober, are unexpectably wretched, Christianity remains unshaken, society is not rocked and governments do not decay. The complainants, therefore, do not, he holds, represent the sentiments of any considerable body of Americans. "We are not theorists and dreamers, but workers," this country is a blessed land, nowhere else have men such opportunity; "nowhere else such multitudes find it possible to escape from ignorance, poverty and the impotence of blind endeavor into the pure light of free, orderly and growing life; nowhere else is there more general good will and sympathy in spite of the mingling of heterogeneous nationalities and conflicting creeds." After all, he finds that there is marvelous exaggeration about our rich men; they are but a sprinkling; "capital is an army of commercial age, and capitalists are necessary to undertake and carry on great enterprises; our wealthy men are the children of the poor, and their children or grandchildren will either perish utterly or go to work again with the laboring classes." No hatred can flourish long here, and finally that the poor do not hate the rich, and the rich as a body are not indifferent to the wants of the poor. The people are neither paupers nor millionaires, but workers, whose energy and thrift secure them a competence—7,500,000 of them are farmers; only half that number are engaged in manufacturing, and three-fourths of the farmers own the land they cultivate, and the tendency is to diminish rather than increase the size of the farms. Our laborers receive higher wages and live in greater plenty than those of any other country. In this strain the Bishop proceeds at considerable length to show that we are a strong people safe from assaults within and not provoking attacks from without; that capital does not exercise the tyrannical power the grumblers charge, else why do the poor flock to us? That no other Government rests so completely on the assent and approval of the governed, and that this is the strongest of all foundations. Anarchical doctrines, he claims, must die here from lack of a suitable environment. They are importations, and will not flourish in our soil, for here social conditions are wholly dissimilar to those of the place of exportation. He holds that the preaching of anarchical doctrines is criminal, and ought to be punished by law, but believes that our society must undergo radical changes before this fanaticism can become a menace to our institutions. The labor troubles are more serious by far, and he thereupon enters another branch of the subject not necessary to now review. We have presented so far to give clearly the view of a patriotic optimist. It is not open to objection, and invites no sharp criticism. All the Bishop says is no doubt true. It is only needed that we shall be so watchful of the use of the privileges here accorded to citizens and to strangers, that it shall not descend to license by abuse. The present menace by Socialism and Anarchism certainly is slight, but we should not for that reason treat it with amused indifference. The men of property derided by the out-throat "reformers" to be assassinated, are, it is true, very few of the whole number of our millions of people, but their lives are as precious to the State as those of any other human beings. It cannot afford to close its eyes to the fact that Anarchical manifestations have made capital timid, have checked enterprise and have aroused in the hearts of the people a resentment that testifies to the deep determination of the country to tolerate no more of them.

TRUSTED REPRESENTATIVES.

California has every reason to congratulate herself that she has in Congress some faithful representatives. As his district was more immediately affected, Representative McKenna had exercised more immediate watchfulness over the claims in the river and harbor bill relating to valley interests in California. The bill passed the House in a satisfactory condition and went to the Senate. There Senator Stanford and Mr. McKenna appeared before the committee having the measure in charge, and in all proper ways earnestly urged its approval. The committee, however, under the influence of Senator Jones, of Nevada, agreed to report back the bill with amendments. One of these is omission of the clause directing the Secretary of War to take legal steps to stop river destruction due to the deposition of hydraulic mining sludges and debris in the rivers and their tributaries. Thereupon, the dispatches say, Senator Stanford called in Mr. McKenna and the two have resolved to make all possible efforts to have the omitted clause restored, and, if that fails, to insist upon an amendment setting aside a sum to be used by the Attorney-General in legally intervening to save river navigation. The promptness with which the Senator has taken hold of the matter, and the knowledge this people have of his thoroughness and determination in all he undertakes, justifies strong hope that he will succeed in this case. As the bill stood originally, no legal right of the hydraulic miner would have been invaded; he would have had his day in court, and all his interests would have been laid bare. The bill in its original character would have settled forever, and emphatically, the whole "slit-eyes" question. But we have reason to believe the action may still be saved as it stood in the bill when it left the House. Certainly it cannot be gotten through as reported by the Senate committee without meeting strong opposition to its mitigation. It is said that friends of the valley in Washington fear the new definition of hydraulic mining in the bill—the passage of water through a nozzle and under pressure—is weak, and may afford hiding for some modifications that will give liberty to processes as vicious in results as any now known. We can trust to Senator Stanford watching this clause closely. We may, therefore, reasonably await the outcome with patience, assured that whatever can be done will be done to secure the passage of the bill in the form in which it came from the House.

THE CURRENT, by no means an alarmist, but very cool and calculating in its criticism, believes there is much more in this business of "booming" the Confederate draft than appears on the surface. It entertains the fear that it will become the dream of European money power, and that therefore patriotism should be exceeding watchful that a war is not gotten up expressly to load the several billions of debt upon the United States Government. It holds that the scheme of saddling this unholy thing upon us will have the aid of the very men who lent money to put down the rebellion, and who at the same time sympathized with and encouraged the draft riots. We are scarcely willing to accept this view. It is true that a formal offer has been made before the House Claims Committee to secure recognition of certain Confederate bonds. But it is not easy to understand how a Congress is to be secured to give such claims a patient hearing. The patriotism that craved rebellion is not latent. It is active today, and would not tolerate candidates pledged to non-recognition of the debt. Nor is it at all likely that the South would be "solid" for the policy of recognition. One of the leading South Carolina journals, speaking for Carolina Democracy, declares that the scheme will receive no countenance from the party in that State. The precipitation of our country into war may look plausible on paper, but no war with such a motive could give victory to the claimants. There must first be such declaration of love of country and of all patriotic sentiment, as cannot now be even contemplated with any reason born of possibility.

Russia is again creating trouble in the East. She does not intend that Europe shall flourish long here, and finally that the poor do not hate the rich, and the rich as a body are not indifferent to the wants of the poor. The people are neither paupers nor millionaires, but workers, whose energy and thrift secure them a competence—7,500,000 of them are farmers; only half that number are engaged in manufacturing, and three-fourths of the farmers own the land they cultivate, and the tendency is to diminish rather than increase the size of the farms. Our laborers receive higher wages and live in greater plenty than those of any other country. In this strain the Bishop proceeds at considerable length to show that we are a strong people safe from assaults within and not provoking attacks from without; that capital does not exercise the tyrannical power the grumblers charge, else why do the poor flock to us? That no other Government rests so completely on the assent and approval of the governed, and that this is the strongest of all foundations. We have presented so far to give clearly the view of a patriotic optimist. It is not open to objection, and invites no sharp criticism. All the French edict of expulsion seems harsh. Yet we must remember that some three citizens of France were sitting on a settee in a cafe, and having people how down before them and call them Muscovites, and High and Most Christian when they are lost. If you, reader, knew your next-door neighbor had such designs on you, you would begin to talk of vigilance committees. The Current.

Possibly, but at least we should want to punish the rascal at home, and should be wholly opposed to sending him out to a country where he could preach his schemes under the shelter of a sympathetic Government.

THE appointment of Governor Thompson of South Carolina to be Assistant Secretary of the Treasury puts a thorough liever in civil service reform into a position of high trust, and where he can aid the reform very materially.

The refinement of political rhetoric is coming up to something awfully and wonderfully amazing, when one orator denounces the party of an opponent for "calumniating" a certain Government transaction.

THE HARLAN TRIAL.

TESTIMONY OF W. PROVOST AND W. S. LYNN.

SHERIFF R. H. BEAMER'S ACCOUNT OF THE INTERVIEW BETWEEN CRAFT AND SILL.

(SPECIAL BY TELEGRAPH TO THE RECORD-UNION.)

WOODLAND, July 8th.—In the Harlan case today William Provost testified as to the movements of Craft, Harlan, Sill and Barnes on the day of and immediately preceding the homicide. He testified that on the 11 and 12 o'clock he saw Craft go from his father's residence to Winne's carpenter shop, back of the Bank of Woodland, and return from there to his home. Shortly before the homicide witness was standing on Main street, with several other young men. One of them spoke about going to dinner, and Frank Nelson said, "Don't go to dinner; you must go to see what the 'fun' would be. When Harlan started toward the Byrns Hotel, Nelson said, 'Let us go to the Byrns Hotel; the fun begins, and Provost, you take the lead. We do not want to go in a crowd.' While the men were at the Capital Hotel, after Craft came out of the carpenter shop and went back to his house, witness drew a revolver and followed him. He had heard that he had been shot, and he went on to Craft's house. When he came back witness asked him if he had put Craft on his guard. Nelson said no; that he had taken over a message from the Byrns Hotel sent from the folks below. He said that Craft was asleep when he reached the house, but he arose and brushed his coat and went out.

W. S. Lynn, colored janitor of the Congregational Church, testified that at 1 o'clock on the day of the homicide he saw deceased walk from the gate of his house and go through a gate in the fence in the college grounds, that about the time they passed on the sidewalk he observed Craft charge a pistol from the front of the Byrns Hotel, and he saw him put both of his hands under his coat, and he appeared to be examining something.

This afternoon Sheriff R. H. Beamer testified. Last January he called on and saw Mr. Harlan at Spaulding's house, and communications she then made I related to Winne, a particular friend of Craft, a few days afterward. I understood I was called upon officially. Sometime in January Craft called at my office late in the evening and asked to see me privately. He asked me if I had ever been shown letters he had written Miss Harlan. I told him no, he was wanted to be very particular, but I had not been shown such letters. I told him I could be positive. I would not know his handwriting. I was to see him. He said, "Somebody has told me that you are a hypocrite to make them eat it." The evening after the marriage of Sill I was called by Sill to go with him and see Craft. On the way down I stopped with him at his store. I told him I wanted to know just what he was going there for. He told me his business there. We also stopped at Attorney Baker's office. He was not in. We met Craft in front of Bond's drug store. Sill told him he came to give him his answer. Craft invited us into the office in the rear of the drug store. He said, "I am in there, Sill, to Craft. 'What you told me at the Byrns Hotel about my wife's affair is a pack of lies.' He said, 'I believe word you have said.' I warn you, if you persist in annoying me or my wife you will have to take the consequences.' Craft said, 'I am a G—d—liar or all right. I have got your answer. I will show you whether I am a G—d—liar or not. We will see who is right in this case before we get through.' Craft then spoke to me, and said he had offered Sill this thing and he had refused. He said he had refused to look at them. He said, 'He did not have manhood enough to look at the same.' He said, 'I told you now how the nerve and manhood you now show, you would probably be in the position you are in to-day.' He said to me, 'I know you are a better friend of Sill than I am, but I do not care. I know I am right, and do not propose to be bullied.' I told him not to make any more of this kind of talk, and that I was an especial friend of either party. I had been invited by Sill to be there, and had received from him a number of letters. I would have done the same thing for him. Craft said he might be mistaken about that. Then Craft and Sill commenced talking over what Sill had said at the Byrns Hotel. Craft reassured some of the matters he said there. Sill told him that he was not a hypocrite. He said, 'I told you now how the nerve and manhood you now show, you would probably be in the position you are in to-day.' LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Issue People.
Yesterday morning a telephone message was received at the station-house announcing that a man, evidently insane, was acting very queerly in the vicinity of the Western Hotel. Officers Woods and Farnon were detailed to hunt him up, and soon conveyed him to the station-house. He gave his name as John J. Mendoza, a sheep-raiser of Livermore, and proved to have in his possession a railroad ticket to Buffalo, N. Y., dated August 11th, and $100 with a friend since his arrival. His mental condition grew worse after his arrival at the station-house, and in the afternoon he was closely looked after for fear that he might do himself violence. Chief Dillman has telegraphed to Livermore for the unfortunate man's friends to come and look after him. He is said to be quite comfortably off, financially, is about 35 years of age, and has a wife in Portland.

Yesterday morning the Commissioners of Lunacy examined Charles Leper, who was arrested on Wednesday morning, and has heretofore been an inmate of the Asylum at Stockton. He is a sane man, and was committed to the Asylum at Stockton.

The funeral of J. D. Kent, the member of the police force whose sudden death Tuesday morning from a stroke of paralysis has been heretofore mentioned, took place from his residence, 828 L street, at 3 p. m. yesterday, and was largely attended. Funeral services were conducted at the residence by Rev. Father Grace. Hundreds of citizens, of the police force, and the family, gathered at the residence to view the remains at the family residence. The funeral procession, which was a long one, was headed by the members of the police force in uniform. They were followed in the following order: A delegation of the various fraternal societies, the railroad shops, Capital Council, No. 34, U. of the Pacific, Sacramento Lodge, No. 80, A. O. U. W., Court Capitol, 6742, Ancient Order of Foresters, Court No. 3, G. A. R., Sumner Relief Corps, No. 11; city officials and friends of the family in carriages. The funeral was very solemn and impressive, and the floral decorations from the police department, friends and the different societies of which deceased was a member, were numerous and beautiful and appropriate, completely covering the newly-made casket. The large crowd and extensive funeral services were indicative of the esteem and respect in which the deceased was held in the community where he lived. The funeral was held at 3 p. m. yesterday, and the remains were taken to the cemetery. The funeral was held at 3 p. m. yesterday, and the remains were taken to the cemetery.

Had a Mud Bath.—Wednesday night at a late hour a man created a great disturbance near the old mouth of the American river, rolling lustily but no one went to see what the trouble was, believing that it was only a case of drunk. Early yesterday morning, however, the matter was investigated, and a white laborer, who was covered with mud, with a large quantity of patch about the size of a dollar on top of his head, and presenting a woeful spectacle, was found. It appeared that the man was under the influence of too much stimulant, and he wandered into the sloughs of the old bed of the American river, and crawled about, wading, rolling and crawling, until he was fortunate enough to get back upon hard soil. If he had not been rescued, he would have been drowned. The man was taken to the hospital, and his life was insured for $5,000.

Boat Race This Evening.—In the sailing races during the regatta last Monday evening, the "Denny Brothers" boat was declared the winner, though the Denny brothers, who sailed the boat, contested the award, claiming that the Viva won only because of her having secured an advantage of one or two hundred yards at the start that she was not entitled to. There has been much talk in Washington boating circles over the result of the race, and the craft will sail the race again this evening. Anniversary of Admission Day.—The celebration of California's admission into the Union will be celebrated at San Jose on the 9th of September next by the Native Sons of the Golden West, and Sacramento and San Jose chapters of the organization are making extensive preparations to attend, accompanied by the surrounding counties, and the jubilee will be held at the Parlor last evening and perfected all arrangements. The Hussar Band of sixteen pieces, and the band of the city of San Jose for $4.50 for the round trip, via Stockton. This celebration promises to eclipse all former ones held under the auspices of the Order.

No Jurisdiction.—The case of W. K. Brown, charged with embezzling a span of horses, property of J. J. Mosser, and taking them to Visalia, which had already occupied two days in the court, was resumed yesterday. After the testimony was all in, and the case had been argued, Judge Post decided that he had no jurisdiction in the case, and accordingly ordered the defendant discharged. A civil action was also brought by Mosser against Brown, and in it judgment was rendered in favor of plaintiff for $84 and costs.

Taken to the Hospital.—During the Mardi Gras procession last Monday evening, while it was passing up K street, the entire support of the float carrying the "burning house" float became ignited. R. D. Graham, one of those supposed to be inhabiting the house, attempted to extinguish the flame by stamping on it, but only made matters worse. His pants caught fire, and while he was putting it out his hands were badly hurt. He was taken to the County Hospital yesterday.

Board of Supervisors.—The Board met yesterday, all the members present. Minutes read and approved. The Board proceeded to examine claims against the county, and devoted the entire day to that business. The only other matter acted upon was a petition of Samuel L. Foster, and other residents of Brighton township, to appoint William Fey as constable of that township. Frank Smith, who had been elected to the office, having failed to qualify, the petition was granted.

DOMESTIC HOSPITALITY.

How the Veterans are to be Entertained in Sacramento Homes.

You must come home with me, and be my guest. You will stay with me, and I will do all that is in my power to honor you.

That Sacramento will do honor to the visiting members of the Grand Army of the Republic, who will visit here on August 11th, is a foregone conclusion. In order to make their entertainment a complete success, all the necessary arrangements are being made, and nothing that can be done will be left undone that will add to the pleasure and enjoyment of the distinguished guests.

One of the most important committees, that on Domestic Hospitality, held its first meeting last evening in the office of E. K. Alsip. The committee is composed of upwards of 100 thoroughly representative citizens, and nearly all of them were present.

Alsip, Chairman of the Executive Committee, who briefly outlined the objects of the committee, and the plan adopted to interest, please and entertain the visiting members of the Grand Army of the Republic, who will visit here on August 11th, is a foregone conclusion. In order to make their entertainment a complete success, all the necessary arrangements are being made, and nothing that can be done will be left undone that will add to the pleasure and enjoyment of the distinguished guests.

OUR INSUREMEN.—State Inspector of Pests, W. G. Klee, is in the city, and yesterday went up into the American river section looking after the insect enemies of fruit. He is desirous to see that the Board of Horticulture formed here so as to aid in making the law for extermination of these destroyers of orchards and vineyards. Such an organization, if energetic and practical, would unquestionably be of great value to fruit-growers, as well as an indirect way to the public generally. It is understood that the Board of Supervisors are favorable to any movement that will protect or advance the interests of the growers themselves whether or not a local Board of Horticulture is organized.

BRIEF NOTES.

The Board of Police Commissioners will meet next Monday evening at 7 o'clock.

A fire on St. Mary's street, near Davisville, Wednesday, destroyed about 100 sacks of cleaned wheat.

The State Board of Education will meet at the office of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction next Tuesday.

The General Fund of July Committee, and also the Mardi-Gras Association, will meet this evening to settle bills and close business.

County Assessor Griffiths has paid into the County Treasury, so far, $13,641.61, collected on personal property not secured by liens.

The force of men engaged in preparing the foundation for the new Cathedral is now quite large, and the work is progressing satisfactorily.

The highest and lowest Signal Service thermometer yesterday was 56° and 55°, with fresh southerly winds, clear and fine weather prevailing.

Work has slackened up a little at the railroad shops, owing to a lack of material for car building, and a number of men have been temporarily laid off.

A correspondent at Mud Springs, El Dorado county, says that a worm called the "slug" is doing considerable damage to the pear trees in that vicinity.

George Woodburn, who was hurt a few days ago, as narrated in the Record-Union, is doing as well as could be expected, and there are strong hopes that his leg will be saved.

There was very little business transacted at the Police Court yesterday. The only case of note was that of a Chinaman who was convicted of playing ball in the street, and fined $1 each.

Department Two of the Superior Court yesterday John A. White was granted a divorce from Valentine M. White, and Annie E. Gleschen from Louis E. Gleschen. The latter was authorized to resume her maiden name of Annie E. Hayes.

The Superior Court of Yolo county has ordered a warrant drawn in favor of Wm. H. Seward Post, No. 65, G. A. R., for $500 on the general fund for the purpose of enclosing the same to the Yolo county Encampment of the G. A. R., to be held in San Francisco August 3d.

During the quarter ending June 30th the Yolo county Board of Supervisors have received in Woodland aggregated $4,555, and in the county outside the city the amount received was $30,000, making a total of $34,555. This is $29,255 less than in the same months last year.

A Chinese hop-grower on the river sold crops of hops for 21 cents per pound. Last evening it was reported that 25 cents per pound was being offered by buyers. Evidently prices are going up again this year, and, though the big prices of a few years ago are not looked for, growers will make nice profit.
